Bonsoir Madame

Big Fat Snake

Guitar akkorder

```
A                          H
Well I've heard that you're married now
                                              A                          H
And I've heard that you don't fool around
                                              A                          H
Well I guess you can hold him down
                                              A                          H
Bet he's kissing' the marks that you leave in the ground

F#                                        A     H
Well I'm happy for your happiness
F#                                        A     H
But you'll be lonely beyond loneliness

      A
Bonsoir Madame
                           H
I know who you are Madame
         Abm                     Cbm  H  A
You used to be a Mademoiselle
   H               E
I know you to well
      A
Bonsoir Madame
                           H
I know who you are Madame
         Abm                       Cbm  H  A
You used to be the Mademoiselle
   H               E
Who send me to hell

                                              A                          H
So he thinks your a normal girl
                                              A                          H
He don't know that you threw thing around
                                              A                          H
He believes in a perfect world
                                              A                          H
He ain't got a clue as to what he's found

F#                                        A     H
Still I'm happy for your happiness
F#                                        A     H
But you'll be lonely beyond loneliness
```

```
      A
Bonsoir Madame
                           H
I know who you are Madame
         Abm                    Cbm  H  A
You used to be a Mademoiselle
   H               E
I know you to well
      A
Bonsoir Madame
                           H
I know who you are Madame
         Abm                       Cbm  H  A
You used to be the Mademoiselle
   H               E
Who send me to hell
```