Volbeat Radio Girl

Guitar akkorder

(The song is actually in C# but it's a lot easier to play it this way. Use a Capo in fret to play it in C#)

```
C         Am              F             G
Oh radio girl play that sweet heavenly song
            C        Am         F              G
Well it's Saturday night and we all get into town

C           Am            F           G
Broken by heartache but driven be her sound
        C              Am             F             G
Well a spell from the speakers was tearing my soul apart
     C      Am            F               G
Oh radio man would you please play that song
C         Am              F          G
One day I know that I'll marry that girl

F                   G                      C       Am
Come home, baby I know it, please dial me up
         F     G
Alone I roam

            C          Am          F               G
Cause the drive-in is closing, the movies out of work
         C         Am           F             G
But the music is playing in my old Bett Betty Ford
     C    Am             F                G
Oh radio man would you please play that song
C          Am              F         G
One day I know that I'll marry that girl

F                   G                     C       Am
Come home, baby I know it, please dial me up
         F     G
Alone I roam

E                                                F
Standing in the rain with one coin for a booth call, Oh Madeline
                    E                                F
The station told my that they didn't even know your name, FOR HELVEDE

E                                                F
Strolling to another city just to catch a song, oh Madeline
       E                                                F
The frequency is better, but I'm freezing on a parking lot, it never ends
```

C Am F G
Broken by heartache but driven be her sound
C Am F G
Well a spell from the speakers was tearing my soul apart
C Am F G
Oh radio man would you please play that song
C Am F G
One day I know that I'll marry that girl

F G C Am
Come home, baby I know it, please dial me up
F G
Alone I roam

E F
Strolling to another city just to catch a song, oh Madeline
E F
The frequency is better, but I'm freezing on a parking lot, it never ends